

Improving The Lives Of Military Connected Children

Press Release: 11/01/2013

Released by:
Debbie Nichols
Founder & CEO
Military Childrens Collaborative Group, Inc.
Huntington Beach, CA 92646
714-536-6184
debbie@militarychildrenscollaborativegroup.com
www.militarychildrenscollaborativegroup.com

Press Release: Awareness Video – What military connected children really face with their loved one returns home from a deployment.

Over the past 12 years, 2 million military connected children have experienced their loved one returning from a deployment(s), with little to no support.

Military Childrens Collaborative Group, Inc. (MCCG) a 501 C 3 has created an Awareness Video sharing the challenges military connected children face, when their loved one returns home. Public perception is when a service member returns home from a deployment, once reunited with their children every one will live happily ever after, which is a fallacy.

This Awareness video addresses the public to better understand what military connected children truly face. Coming home from a deployment is exciting for everyone at first. Shortly after being reunited the excitement is over, a child realizes their loved one is now acting different. Many children experience their loved one returning home with visible and invisible wounds and are challenged. These children are proud of their loved one's service to our Country.

MCCG is rolling out an Awareness campaign encouraging and educating our communities, schools, and organizations on how they can better support their local military connected children and their families.

MCCG focuses on improving the lives of military connected children with loved ones of- Active Duty, Non Active, National Guard, Reserve, Veterans, and those that have lost their lives serving our Country.

To view the Awareness video go to www.militarychildrenscollaborativegroup.com the video is placed on the middle of the page.